CONTINUING THE ROAST.

The Lyle Geste of Carl Schurz in the Pulpit.

DISCOURSE DELIVERED BY JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE, FAST DAY, APRIL 11, 1878.

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

The Rev. James Freeman Clarke, accusing Senators of being false to truth and to their country, gives no sign of having so much as read the debate which furnishes the ground of his accusation. He does not even allude to, much less does he refute, the essential points asserted and discussed in the Senate. He sees nothing but an attempt of Senators to persecute Secretary Schurz for his foreign birth. I quote again all that he says on the Timber question.

The attacks of Senators on the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Schurz, indicate very strikingly the false and unpatriotic attitude of leading Republican Senators. Mr. Schurz has devoted himself with untiring industry and great ability to the duties of his office. Among them, he found that of freeing the forests of the United States from plunderers who were laying them waste. For doing this, he has been bitterly abused by Republican Senators, and that on the most trivial grounds. We claim for him the credit of saving the United States property from plunder, and we are told that he is a Prussian by birth. We ask whether he has not done his duty faithfully, and we are informed, that Germany is not as large as these Western Territories. It is made a crime in the secretary to resist robbers because he is of foreign extraction. He is to have no credit for his loyal services because the geography of his native land differs from that of the country which he benefits and honors by his noble character and eminent talents.

By referring to the Congressional Record it will be seen that only two Senators, Mr. Blaine, of Maine, and Mr. Teller, of Colorado, made any allusion to Mr. Schurz's foreign birth. Not that Mr. Clarke has read or heard the remarks of these gentlemen; that be far from thee, Boston! Mr. Clarke's rendering of Solomon's proverb is: "He that heareth a matter before he judgeth it, it is folly and shame unto him." Mr. Clarke never tarries long enough with a fact to know its face. All the use he has for facts is to play tag with them. He "tags" this time Mr. Schurz's Germanic origin, and then runs! A little attention to what was said on this point will show how utterly untrustworthy are Mr. Clarke's statements.

Some days after Mr. Blaine had made his first comments on the question, based on the letter of the Delegate from Montana, he spoke a second time in reply to Secretary Schurz's letter, and to what had been meanwhile said in debate by Senators. I quote his exact words from The Congressional Record:

I arraigned the Secretary of the Interior as being in that action not an intelligent man of affairs; that it was not the work or decision of a practical man of business; that it was the chimera the delusion of an utterly impracticable theorist. That is the arraignment I made, and I here declare—repeating what I said before—that the Secretary of the Interior may go upon the top of the building in which his office is located and may look abroad in Maryland and Virginia and see thousands of acres of timber land, and for the same quality of timber cut in Montana he cannot get for the wood in sight of the National Capital 50 cents a cord stumpage. Nay, sir, the wood land in sight of the spire of Trinity Church in the City of New York will not pay what the Secretary of the Interior exacted of these distant settlers in Montana. There is no place sufficiently settled, there is no population sufficiently dense in this country to justify what the Secretary of the Interior demanded and collected from these distant people, being in the remote solitudes of the Rocky Mountains.

Why, Mr. President, consider the circumstances. Our country is so vast that we forget its magnitude; the Secretary of the Interior forgets it, although charged directly with a Department of the Government which should study it carefully. The Territory of Montana contains 150,000 square miles; it is as large as New York and New Jersey and Delaware and Maryland and Pennsylvania and Ohio all put together; and what is this great dense population in this vast area that is threatening to destroy the property of the United States? How many people are there? The Secretary of the Interior does not happen to be a native of this country. That is not his fault, and I do not mention it with any spirit of reproach. He is a native of the Kingdom of Prussia. The Kingdom of Prussia is 15,000 square miles less in extent than the Territory of Montana, and it has a population of 25,000,000 people. Montana, with this vast area of mountain gorges and mountain tops, has a sparse and adventurous population of 25,000 people. You can place them all so that not one human being would be in sight or in hailing distance of another in the entire Territory. They have gone out there to battle with all the hardships of frontier and pioneer life, and such is their enterprise that within the last fifteen years they have contributed to the wealth of this country $150,000,000 in gold and silver bullion. They have sent into your markets $150,000,000, I repeat, of gold and silver bullion; and now the Secretary of the Interior, perhaps with the traditions of his young manhood and boyhood, applies to that country the land laws of Prussia, not the land laws of the settled Territories of the United States.

I quote, also, the words of Senator Teller, of Colorado:

The Secretary of the Interior labors under ignorance of the physical condition of that country. He supposes that the condition of climate and of soil in Colorado, in Montana, in Idaho, in Nevada, is like what it was in the Kingdom of Prussia, from which he came. He supposes—at least that is the way he treats it—that the climate is the same; and I believe he has before the Senate somewhere, slumbering in some committee, a proposition that there shall be twenty-five foresters appointed each year to go out in that Western country and take charge of the timber growing on the public lands.

This is the sum and substance—I believe it is literally all—that was said on Mr. Schurz's foreign birth. But, having no other defence to make in answer to a debate in which Mr. Schurz's adherents either fled or surrendered, the newspaper indorsers of the Secretary at once dropped fact and argument, and sounded the tocsin on the abuse and persecution he was suffering because he was born in Prussia!

And it is this mean and blatant falsehood, this vulgar and vicious attempt to gain by sympathy what had been lost by evidence which the Rev. James Freeman Clarke babbles from the sacred desk! Considering how far this debate was from being done in a corner, it must be admitted that, like King David from Hadadezer, it took exceeding much brass to make Mr. Clarke's statements.

It is not for me to defend the style or the sense of any Senator's argument; but the reader must be very dull who does not perceive in the foregoing extracts from the Senate debate, not a spirit of narrow hostility, but an entirely pertinent line of remark, a conclusive form of reasoning, a perfectly natural inference and reference that was not indelicate nor improper, nor in any sense offensive to any right-minded German.

The whole history of the Montana timber question shows that Mr. Blaine and Mr. Teller were not abusive but accurate when they said that Mr. Schurz in that action was not a practical man of business but an impracticable theorist; that he was applying to our country the land laws of Prussia and not of the United States; and that he was apparently ignorant of the difference between the country of his birth and the country of his adoption. The history of the proposition to which Mr. Teller casually and rather cavalierly refers shows if I mistake not, the same thing. These Senators were not speaking in the random, rhetorical way employed by Mr. Clarke; they were speaking by the law and by the testimony. At that very moment there was pending before the Senate Committee on Public Lands a bill, prepared under Mr. Schurz's direction, having in view the direct introduction of Prussian land laws into this country.

Yet perhaps I speak too positively here. I have not myself been able to get access to the land laws of Prussia, except as they lie buried in dreadful tomes, in the German language, on hopeless shelves; and I believe I would rather tell a lie than undertake to exhume them and translate them! But one need only travel as far toward a lie as the half-way house of hearsay evidence; for I am assured by gentlemen who have been in Germany, and are acquainted with German laws and usages, that sundry provisions in this remarkable bill are familiarly known in the forests that border the Oder, the Weser and the Vistula. Of my own unassisted reason I only know that they are not American. The bill would create offices hitherto unknown to the Republic, and its very nomenclature is alien and royal. It is Senate Bill No. 609, "providing for the disposition of the public timber and timbered lands of the United States," to which should be added as a subtitle, "providing also for the disposition of Mr. Carl Schurz as a practical American statesman." It is a bill of sixteen sections containing nine octavo pages, and is calculated to send a thrill of romance through all the imaginative young braves of the Interior Department.

Mr. Schurz sets out upon his knightly quest by declaring, in the first section of his bill, that no timber-bearing lands * * * shall be sold or disposed of in any manner whatever, but shall be held by the Government with a view to preventing waste and destruction by fire, or by any other cause, and for the gradual sale therefrom of only such trees as are most valuable as timber or for lumber."

Having thus "with one white arm swept" gathered in all the timber lands of the United States—a trifle of several hundred millions of acres—an area many times as large as New England and New York combined—Mr. Schurz next turns his attention to regulations for governing them. And here is richness—foreign richness, evidently, rather than our sordid American type. For Mr. Schurz provides in Section 3 "That for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act the office of Forester is hereby created."

Mr. Teller treats this bill with a levity which the pulpit cannot too severely condemn. He does not even consider it worthy of a definite article. He calls it irreverently "a proposition." He does not give it a local habitation. It is only lying around "somewhere." Does Mr. Teller think it becoming and decorous to have the net result of so much "untiring industry and great ability" crammed with twenty other pamphlets into some chairman's desk-drawer or perhaps tip-tilted into the waste-basket, or, may be, shut in between the leaves of the United States Statutes at Large? Does not Mr. Teller know that a "Forester" is a royal appendage, not to be lightly spoken of? Webster's Unabridged defines Forester, "In England an officer appointed to watch a forest, preserve the game, and institute suits for trespass." Worcester gives his say at him as "An officer appointed to watch a forest or chase and preserve the game."

Another, to the manner born, outstrips our laggard Democrats and paints him full length as "An officer appointed to royalty for the care, preservation and protection of royal parks, and the enforcement of the game laws!" We have plenty of sovereigns and plenty of parks. What doth hinder that we should not also lay in a supply of Foresters? Nothing but the meagreness of Mr. Teller's contracted imagination, which can only stretch to the limits of twenty-five specimens of that useful and ornamental article. But Mr. Schurz stoops to no such narrow ways. Having ordained the office of Forester, he generously ordains that we shall have enough of them. Mr. Schurz evidently thinks of Foresters as the old lady thought of medicine—if a little was good a good deal would be better—and thus starts them full-armed and countless from his fertile brain. For thus reads his bill:

"And the President of the United States (which in this case means, of course, the Secretary of the Interior) is empowered to appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, such number of Foresters, at a compensation of twenty-five hundred dollars per annum each * * * as he may deem necessary for the proper care, custody, preservation and appraisement of the timber on the public lands."

Thus we have provided ourselves with an innumerable multitude of gay gallants—Robin Hood, Little John, Friar Tuck and all; perhaps Mr. Clarke might be induced to take that chaplaincy and so aid Mr. Schurz in his noble effort at "resisting robbers." Secretary Schurz has not yet prescribed their uniform, but no doubt it will be Lincoln green,

"With bow in hand, for to withstand
Their enemies if need be."

He has, however, mapped out their duties with a bold stroke, indeed, that it would be utterly impossible for any single Forester to attend to more than the area of one good sized county of twenty miles square. He provides in this extraordinary bill that "it shall be the duty of such Foresters to carefully guard all timber on the public lands against waste by trespass or by fire." True, the Montana settlers had taken the matter of guarding against fire into their own hands, and with such success that the lands have not only supplied them with all the timber they wanted, but hold more timber now than before the settlers came. But this is the miserable, independent self-reliant American way of doing things, and leaves no loop-hole for glory and Mr. Schurz. What shall we do for Foresters at $2,500 a year salary if the settlers are going to take care of their own woods for nothing? Wherefore, hands off, Messrs. Settlers, and make way for the Foresters marching along fifty-score strong, great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song:

"Yet take good heed, for, dry or weet,
We must lodge on the plain,
And us above, none other roof
But a brake bush or twain."

"There shall no meat for us be gain,
Nor drink—beer, ale nor wine—
None other house but leaves and boughs
To cover your head and mine."

Among the most remarkable of the duties imposed upon these rovers of the greenwood is that prescribed by Mr. Schurz in Section 7, "that all timber sold from the public lands may be estimated and appraised by the Forester of the proper district, either by the acre or by the thousand feet, board measure, by the cubic foot, by the linear feet of trees of given diameters, or by the cord—the prices to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior." Mr. Schurz, for some inscrutable reason, has omitted fagots by the bunch, chips by the basket, and dried birch bark by the armful. Shavings, also, are left to sway unmolested in the wind, and I infer that the little frontier girls may still stuff their dolls with National sawdust, subject to no other stumpage than a lively doll is liable to encounter in the hands of a very young lady.

GAIL HAMILTON.

REPRESENTATIVE POTTER'S DEFENSE.

From the N. Y. Times.

Mr. Clarkson N. Potter has written a letter concerning his management of the investigation resolutions in the house of Representatives. It is the defense of Mr. Potter from the criticisms which have been freely bestowed upon him by the Republican press, and by many newspapers of the Democratic faith. That such a letter has been extorted from this supercilious and conceited politician is significant. It is written in answer to one of those "friends" who conveniently appear with interrogatories when a public man has explanations to make or fresh facts to publish. It is furnished to the Associated Press, as that agency affords the readiest means by which Mr. Potter's inquisitive friend in New York can be reached. If we say that the letter is entirely characteristic, we shall sufficiently describe it to those who have paid the least attention to the crooked career and indirect methods of Mr. Clarkson N. Potter.

The convenient friend of the member from the Twelfth New York District wants to know why the venerable Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia, was "howled down" when he sought a hearing during the struggle over the Potter resolutions. To this, Mr. Potter replies that the howling was done by the newspapers; and he refers to certain headlines in the papers which allude to Mr. Stephens as being "howled down by the Potter mob," while he, Clarkson N. Potter, was depicted in the same large type descriptions as being simply "interrupted." The letter-writer evidently thinks that he was howled down, if anybody was, and that Mr. Stephens was only interrupted. Unhappily, there is no official record from which we can discover who were the persons whose cries of "regular order" interrupted or howled down Mr. Stephens when he sought to offer his olive branch—if it was an olive branch. Mr. Potter, with much blandness, explains that when the previous question has been moved, and interruptions are interposed, various persons may demand the regular order, or with the simple words "I object" prevent that unanimous consent which is necessary to give the member a hearing. Artful Mr. Potter leaves us to infer that the cries of "regular order!" with which Mr. Stephens was howled down when he asked for three minutes during the session of May 6, might have come from all sides of the House, and not from "Potter's mob," as the mendacious newspaper headlines seemed to declare. When the yell of "regular order!" arose, two Republicans, Humphrey, of Wisconsin, and Wait, of Connecticut, entreated the Democrats that Mr. Stephens be permitted to speak. In the midst of the noise, Mr. Potter said, according to the Congressional Record, "I am not permitted to yield to anybody. I am instructed to, and where I am. I therefore move that the House do now adjourn." And the House thereupon adjourned. If the mob which howled down Mr. Alexander H. Stephens before Mr. Potter refused to allow that gentleman to speak was not Mr. Potter's whose was it?

This point, however, is not of vital importance. What is important is the fact that Mr. Potter believed, as he now confesses that Mr. Stephens had behind him a small body of Democrats who were ready "to prevent investigation." This is Mr. Potter's version of the matter. Further on he says that he has been informed that Mr. Stephens has furnished the Republicans with a list of Democrats, twenty-two in number, who were willing to follow his lead. It is an impudent assumption on Mr. Potter's part that this little band of Democrats were ready and willing to stifle investigation. They were prepared to support Mr. Stephens in his attempts to introduce some sort of a compromise which would satisfy "Potter's mob," howling for an investigation, as well as pacify the Republicans who were denied all opportunity to amend, or to offer, to amend, the pending resolutions. It was his fear of an honorable compromise which induced Mr. Potter to insist on pressing his motion, backed as he was by the vote of a secret committee—a committee which could not trust a caucus of the Democratic Congressmen.

And the reason why Mr. Potter, acting under the instructions of the Democratic junta, would not hear Mr. Stephens and would not entertain the Hale amendment, is presently made to appear. He says that investigations in other States than those of Florida and Louisiana would only be inquiries into alleged frauds which did not affect the general result. It is right, he says, to examine election frauds which did affect the final result, "in order that they may not happen again." Secondly, such an extended inquiry as that contemplated in the Hale resolution would prevent the committee from making any report at this Congress. That is to say, the extent of the investigation would make it impossible to use their collected ammunition in the Congressional elections of 1878. This last point is not worth consideration. Its mere statement is sufficient to satisfy any candid man of the desperateness of Mr. Potter's defense. The first point is by no means new. Investigations into election frauds, according to this pink of political honor, are useless unless the frauds have resulted in the election of a President. The attempt of Mr. Samuel J. Tilden a candidate for the Presidency, to bribe a Presidential Elector in Oregon, is not a matter to be inquired in of because it did not succeed. An attempt at murder is no crime, because no murder was actually committed. Or, if it were a crime, the least said about it the better. The deliberate suppression of 40,000 or 50,000 Republican votes in the State of Mississippi is not to be looked into, because that burning outrage did not defeat the Republican candidate for the Presidency. But we may examine other alleged frauds, "in order that they may not happen again!" Of course, Mr. Potter does not believe that the colored people of the South were politically terrorized. He thinks that we have overrated the colored vote, and that in some mysterious way the Republican strength in Mississippi and Georgia has exhaled into nothingness. We should not be too curious as to the method of its extinction.

The remainder of this laborious defense of the Potter scheme is occupied with an argument to prove that Congress could not have counted the Electoral vote, and that the House should have proceeded to elect—Tilden. Failing in this—and Mr. Potter cannot sufficiently bewail a failure that dashed his personal hopes—the Electoral Commission came into being. Mr. Potter naturally believes that the Commission was deceived; that the Democratic managers were not, and that the Democrats were very forbearing in that they did not forcibly seize the Capitol while they were able. This extraordinary document ought to finish Mr. Clarkson N. Potter.

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

John Lynch of Lewiston, now at the State Prison wants a pardon, and his case is to be heard June 24th by the Governor and Council.

Mr. Ed. Burleigh of Lewiston, who was injured by falling from a ladder at the Thursday night fire, is getting along as comfortably as could be expected from the painful nature of his injuries. He has lain in one position since he was placed in bed, unable to be moved.

A custom house official at Danville Junction discovered two tramps asleep in a covered car on the Maine Central Railroad track Thursday evening. He shut the car, secured it by a wooden pin and on Friday morning hastened to a policeman, knowing the car would be at Auburn depot at that hour. The car came, but behold the tramps had disappeared. They had cut a hole through the car, pulled out the pin which fastened the door, opened the door and quietly vamoosed.

Cumberland.

The opening races at Presumpscot Park, Portland, came off Saturday. The race for a purse of $120 was won by Kitty Morris. The second, the three minute race for $100, was won by Viola.

The Argus says that the usual field day exercises took place Saturday at the Topsham fair grounds before a large crowd of spectators. The programme was carried out in a manner satisfactory to all. One of the most interesting features was the exhibit on walk of one mile by Mr. Dole, a young man residing in Brunswick. Time seven minutes, forty-seven seconds. The three legged race was very exciting. Martin and Payson made the best time that has ever been made at any of the Bowdoin field day exhibitions. In the afternoon a game of la crosse was played on the "Campus," which was very interesting to the many spectators assembled.

The Argus says: Simeon H. Yeaton, the proprietor of the Brewer House in Deering, was brought before Trial Justice Andrew J. Chase of Deering, Saturday afternoon for maintaining a nuisance. The court found probable cause and bound the defendant over in the sum of $300 for his appearance at the September term of the Superior Court. The defendant was immediately arraigned on a second complaint, and his case was continued one week.

The Advertiser says: After Mr. Charles Mullin one of Francis Kane's bondsmen, visited Montreal and failed to induce Francis Kane,—who was indicted for a felonious assault on officer Morse of Portland, some time ago—to return home, Detective Seth Sterling was sent on to Montreal to discover the whereabouts of Kane, and Col. Cobb, another bondsman, put himself in communication with the Canadian authorities to see what could be done. Saturday a despatch was received that Kane had been arrested under the extradition treaty, and a formal trial, preparatory to handing him over, would take place in Montreal, Monday, and asking that officer Morse be sent on at once. The dispatch was received at 12.40 p. m., and at 1.50 p. m., Mr. Morse was on his way to Montreal.

Kennebec.

The Aud says that Mr. F. B. Mosher, a scythe grinder in the employ of Emerson, Stevens & Co., of West Waterville, narrowly escaped death by the bursting of his grindstone last week. The stone was nearly worn out, and to increase its speed a small pulley had been attached. The speed of the main shaft was suddenly accelerated by the stopping of the hammers, which caused the stone over which Mr. M. was sitting, to burst, throwing him back against a partition, where he struck upon his feet, a large piece of the stone going nearly across to the shop of Hubbard & Blake Manufacturing Co. Mr. Mosher's escape from a terrible death was remarkable.

Knox.

The Herald says that Thursday of last week, Mr. Albert Drummond, of Portland, of the firm of Chas. McLaughlin & Co., was seriously injured at Clark's Island, by being thrown down on to a granite stone, while attempting to stop a frightened horse.

The Journal says, Miss Laura Farnham and Mrs Mary M. Snow deal live in the old Moses Wells house, at Augusta, on the river side of the street. The other day they saw a boy with a basket on his arm, passing up under the platform of the building. The circumstances looked very suspicious, and after the boy left, the ladies crawled in under the platform, and, taking away the rubbish, found nicely concealed eight quart bottles full of rum, belonging to some one who intended it for sale. They carried the bottles out to the river, and in sight of the rumseller who owned them, and others in the same business, dashed them to pieces on the rocks. Good missionaries are these for the cause of temperance.

In the garden of Freeman Prince of Auburn, is a tree that produced this week a blossom as full as a rose, two and one half inches in diameter.

THE TILDEN-POTTER "INVESTIGATION."

The Washington special of the Boston Advertiser, thus refers to Anderson's testimony before the Potter Committee on Saturday last:

"The Anderson testimony was published here this morning, and of course it was eagerly read by politicians of all stripes. The Democrats are confident that they have succeeded in fixing the brand of fraud on somebody, and congratulate each other with much effusion. One of the most staid and venerable of their representatives could find no better words to express his sentiments while riding in the street car than, 'We've got 'em; we've got 'em sure.' They take all Anderson's testimony as unimpeachable fact, and accept it as greedily as if he were a person who had never sworn to a lie or in any respect soiled the integrity of his conscience. Evidently they are disposed to make the most they can out of him, just as long as it serves their purpose they will take his word as against that of any Republican, however reputable. The desperation of their case is shown by their willingness to stake it on the evidence of a confessed political blackmailer, and on documents which not even in any State of the Union would submit to the unsided action of a jury. The Republicans, since they have read the evidence, are much more confident that it will be repudiated by fair-minded men than they were when their only knowledge of it was derived from the stories circulating from mouth to mouth of its character. Few of them feel called upon to attempt any vindication of Stanley Matthews' course, but they say judgment ought to be suspended even in regard to him until he has had an opportunity to set forth his side of the case, and give an explanation of the circumstances under which his several letters were written, and these may then appear in a quite different light from that shed upon them by Anderson's story. Secretary Sherman's case is not considered by any means inexplicable on grounds entirely consistent with honor and propriety. There is nothing in the letter itself, they say, if it should be shown to be genuine, that any honorable man might not have written to men whom he thought were risking life, property, and all in their adherence to duty. Before any wrong can be imputed to him on account of this letter it will have to be shown that he was fully aware when he wrote it that Anderson and Weber were rascals engaged in a criminal act. That does not by any means yet appear to be the case. Anderson does not say anywhere that they had told Sherman they had committed a perjury or had consented to use their names in perpetrating an outrage. They had not then accused themselves of what Anderson now has accused himself, and accused himself falsely, for the sake of gratifying a malignant temper, as it is expected will be shown before this business is done with. No credit whatever is given to Anderson's representations of what occurred between himself and the President. It has been ascertained to-day that the President has never sent Anderson's name to the Senate for any office whatever. He was reported in the papers as about to be nominated for office, but he never was nominated, and the reasons why he was not may be quite different from the ones he has chosen to assign when the testimony of those implicated by this scurvy politician, who now, by his own admission was intriguing for himself all the time, is heard. There is great confidence that his charges will be very thoroughly exploded, and nothing will be left but the unsavory wreck of the witness's reputation and a very much disgusted and demoralized Democratic party. Senator Kellogg asserts unequivocally that Anderson's statements about himself are palpable falsehoods; that he did not give him his appointment as supervisor, and at the same time when Anderson asserts he had conversations with him in New Orleans he was not in that city at all, but at the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia.

The committee had a brief meeting Monday, but did no business whatever. Mr. Potter, the chairman, has been in New York. There will be a meeting Tuesday at 10 o'clock, when Mr. Reed and perhaps other members of the committee will cross examine Anderson. It is probable that this will take up the whole time of the session. An examination of Anderson's evidence before the Senate Committee, sent to New Orleans last year, shows that he is recklessly contradicting the statements he then, long after the election, made under oath.—What the future course of the Committee will be, after Anderson's examined, does not yet appear. It is said that a message has been sent to the Jenks woman to come to Washington to give her evidence, and also to Ministers Stoughton and Noyes.—The Democrats are circulating the story that they have new matter more startling than that developed by Anderson, which is as unexpected to them as to any one. Probably, if there is anything in it, it means that somebody else has brought foul wares to a ready customer.

The Journal's special says: "General Butler's theory of the Sherman letter is ingenious, although it may not be correct. The General says there can be no doubt of Weber's devotion to the Republican party, and of his desire to promote the success of its candidates, while Anderson was evidently a soldier of fortune who was waiting for something to turn up. Anderson insisted upon having a written guarantee from Sherman. Weber, who felt that his life was not safe in his Louisiana home (and his subsequent assassination showed how well founded were his apprehensions), went to Sherman and asked him if he and Anderson might depend upon being provided for if they were exiled from Louisiana for conscience sake. Sherman assured him that they should be taken care of, and Weber on leaving wrote out what Sherman had said, perhaps making it a little stronger. Some of the expressions, however, were remembered by Sherman as having been made use of by him in conversation with Weber, and he could not absolutely repudiate it. The production of the letter itself would show whether Sherman did or did not write it. Meanwhile some assert that Sherman himself has the original, having purchased it from a female relative of Weber after he was assassinated, and at the proper time it will be seen that a cunning forgery is the corner-stone of the conspiracy investigation. If a forged letter has been photographed and made the subject of so much secret Democratic jubilation, it will be amusing.

Stanley Matthews is just now placed in the attitude of a bankrupt merchant who has put out a large amount of paper while having nothing to take it up with, but when Mr. Matthews tells his side of the story, as he undoubtedly will tell it, and perhaps in the Senate Chamber, the epithets so ingenuously parceled may present a different aspect.

The Democrats, who were jubilant over the "start off" of the investigation with Anderson, are not so confident to-day. It is already sure that the cross-examination of Anderson to-morrow will show the unreliability of his evidence. It will also be shown that he asserted in New Orleans, while the count was progressing, that there was a large sum of money in that city at the disposal of Tilden's friends, and he intended to get some of it."

The Providence Journal says: That Anderson's testimony, in and of itself, is of not even the slightest consequence, no intelligent Democrat will pretend. He is discredited in advance. He has not only been on both sides, but he has set up his alleged information for sale in the newspaper market. To him in a court of law would be applied the legal and just rule that a witness who has forsworn himself, who has lied, and who has endeavored to make merchandise of his testimony, is not to be believed, unless corroborated by other and credible witnesses. Mr. Potter is therefore blundering if he supposes that the reflecting portion of his party will now, or at any time, be influenced by what Anderson shall say.

The second attempt to assassinate the Emperor of Germany, following so quickly upon the previous failure, taken in connection with the circumstances attending each assault, indicates a conspiracy that has a deeper purpose than the taking of the life of the venerable man who enjoys in such large measure the confidence and love of the German people, and will be regarded as a blow at the life of the empire and the interests involved in its maintenance. The men who have made these assaults are representatives of the same class, and that class the one which in Europe and America has manifested a purpose to make war upon governments, properly. Christianity, and the existing social relations of society, and for this reason their acts will be deprecated outside those who admire the bluff old Emperor, or are interested in the empire he has helped to establish.—There is an admirable opportunity for the exercise of detective skill in discovering the men who have been the plotters of these crimes, and it will be strange if among men who so recklessly conspire for murder there are not some base enough to betray their accomplices. The Emperor, until investigation shall have resulted in the discovery of the ramifications of this plot, will hardly venture to ride through the streets of Berlin with that freedom which has been invited by the warm stakable affection of the great body of the citizens, and in their investigations the police will have the full sympathy of the public, and all the aid that sympathy can afford. The Russian girl that assassinated an oppressor has awakened an interest in the millions of people all over the world who would regard it as a great calamity if that lawless spirit which stops not at any crime to effect its purpose, should achieve a victory in the assassination of the German Emperor.—Boston Traveller.

Evidently Mr. Potter and his political colleagues on the investigating committee do not propose "to investigate to find out;" they will only inquire along the line of a cautiously laid plan. Being asked to investigate all matters pertaining to alleged frauds in the count of the Presidential vote of Florida, they unreadily close up the inquiry and limit it to the particular matter of McLin's alleged confession. McLin's story is exclusively Democratic capital, and the Democratic investigators regard all other matters connected with the Florida counts suspicious by as a veteran regards a smoking bomb-shell. Mr. Potter declared that the Hale amendment to include other States in his original resolution was not "germane." With a disregard of common sense which is almost comical, he is now ready to explain that all matters pertaining to the Florida count, not included in McLin's grist, are not germane to the business which the House has ordered him to investigate.—N. Y. Times.

A little Indian war has broken out among the fragments of tribes lingering among the sands, hills and lava-beds of Idaho. The disturbances affect a region of country stretching from Fort Hall, north of the Bannock Reservation, westward to Camas Prairie. A lively summer campaign is anticipated, and the settlers have been warned by several attacks that they must leave the country. The attitude of Sitting Bull has been threatening so long that the recent reports of his preparations for a fight will surprise nobody. This redoubtable Sioux Chief will not move until grass is grown for pasturage, nor before he has secured allies enough to make good his threat to "make the Canadians weep." The danger of a repetition in Idaho of a long campaign like that of the Nez Perces which lately distressed the country is just now more imminent than any descent from the Canadian border. There is a total force of about 2,500 men available in the military posts near the disturbed region. Of course, the reorganizers of the Army will tell us that this is at least 500 more than is needed.

The fraud shriekers are not agreed. One of the most persistent, Jere. Black, doesn't take much stock in the Potter expedition. He says the President's title is legal to every intent and purpose, and that Mr. Hayes can be removed only by impeachment or death. He thinks he could be impeached for giving offices as rewards to men who committed frauds to make him President, but he does not believe he is guilty of doing that. If the object is to impeach Secretary Sheridan, then the House ought to have made a direct attack on him. "As it is," concludes Mr. Black, "the investigation seems to be aimless. The mill is going to be sure, but there is nothing in the hopper than can be legally ground."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The response to Mr. Key's letter from the South are little different from those of Northern Democrats. They all agree that he has only injured himself; that his charges against the motives of Southern Congressmen are ungracious and unjustifiable, and that he has simply cast imputation on his own people. One odd remark that it will make Independent candidates for Congress more odious than ever, by showing that they are merely the "tubes of radicalism." This is cool! It is odious in the South to be an ally of the Administration, is it? This is a stingingly bitter fruit of the reconciliation policy.—N. Y. Tribune.

Ohio has been redistricted and arranged for the Democratic slate. The Democratic local lines are wonderful to behold. An engineer could not survey one of them with any ordinary instrument and could not even walk along the lines until his legs were lumbered and his eyes crooked by the aid of Democratic jobs. Now it is proposed to redistrict Missouri so as to sweep the entire State. Go ahead Democracy, if the little maneuvers of the leaders do not wake the loyal sentiments of the people to a sense of their danger, nothing will.

An Iowa man who was elected to Congress two years ago as a Greenbacker, declined a renomination on that platform. He states that, in the present situation of affairs, the Greenback movement is out of place, silver having been remonetized and resumption practically provided for. He argues that resumption will unlock vast quantities of gold and greenbacks now hoarded, make money plentiful and revive business prosperity and good times.

An organ of the Labor party in Indiana informs certain gentlemen who have not paid for the insertion of the paragraphs announcing them as candidates for office within a few days, they will find in the columns of that paper a biographical sketch which will enable the Convention to act intelligently on their claims.

The Tribune says of the alleged Sherman letter that "it has in every word consistent with a firm belief that the judicial protest was true, and that the only danger was that a reactionary might be extorted by threats."

DANIEL WHITE,

June5 No. 2 Kenduskeag Bridge

To my Patrons and Friends in Bangor and vicinity—Greeting.

For many years I have used VULCANITE RUBBER for my BASE and am pleased to say that there is mercury in the plate and many who wear teeth prepared in this way, have suffered severely with Salivation of the mouth. But in the last three years I have used a new patent—the CHELOLOID BASE, with the greatest satisfaction. This plate is entirely free from mercury and the salivation accruing to the mouth. My patients are delighted with it, and the more I use it the better I like it. Those who are free from the use of RUBBER can come and have a new set of teeth made upon Celluloid for a very small sum.

All dental work that comes to me, I will do in the best possible manner and at the lowest terms.

Yours truly,

J. K. LINCOLN,

DOMESTIC NEWS.

FORTY-FIFTH CONGRESS. Second Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, June 1.

On motion of Mr. Sherman the joint resolution in regard to the restoration of amity between the United States and Mexico, was considered, with the next session and authorized to sit during vacation.

The bill finally for the date of the commencement of monthly pensions and granting certain arrearages was passed.

The resolution submitted yesterday by Mr. Sherman, providing that the Senate meet at eleven o'clock A. M., daily, until otherwise ordered was agreed to.

At the conclusion of the morning hour's business the Senate resumed consideration of the bill to repeal all laws in aid of the Pacific railroads, the question being on the amendment in relation to the Northern Pacific land grant.

Mr. Sherman said that he would not trouble the Senate with any remarks on the subject, but would merely make the observation that he regarded the great consideration was given by the witnesses, in the course of his answers, acknowledging that he should be glad to have the Committee on Foreign Relations investigate the matter while at New Orleans, for the purpose of carrying out the explanations had entered into with the Mexican Government. The Committee at Mr. Sherman's request until Friday.

Scene of the Cross Examination.

Mr. Reed's questions were largely devoted to endeavoring to connect the witness for discrepancies between his testimony given Saturday and the subsequent declarations made by him before the Hayes investigating Committee that visited Louisiana last winter. The drift of the examination was to show that the witness had been influenced in his testimony by the fact that he had no evidence of fraud in his possession, and had not pretended that he had, and yet the statement made by him was, in effect, sufficient evidence that Mint Pitchlynn had been illegally elected by the Democratic party to the convention, for such supervisor being that which was to secure for him the position of Naval Officer. He was pressed on that point, as to whether his statement Saturday, that he had no such evidence was consistent with his subsequent statement that he could prove that the Democratic party in control at the time, if they could be convicted into such testimony, and also sought that he had knowledge that the vote of the State was to be thrown out on a general protest. He also admitted that he did not attempt to get the position of Naval Officer, and that he had no personal interest in the matter, as all he got was not to suppress the truth.

Q—You say in that letter—

A—Oh, simply took this paper like a piece of homeopathic sugar candy.

Q—That is about the order given when a medical man administers medicine.

A—It was not very sugary, because in the distribution the Radicals got the bitter and we got the sweet.

Q—Is that part of explanation, you would give frequently since then?

A—I never have had to say it in so many words, until I was brought in contact with Republicans officials in Louisiana.

Q—It is a common way to do business in Louisiana?

A—Yes it is a common thing in Louisiana.

Q—Something like this: "I bought collector, but I made him a present of that I will give John Smith a collectorship and you both keep it and that binds you to that the sort of agreement you are to all kinds of matters?

A—No, I am not aware of it being a bargain.

Q—You do not know how many more of these little promissory notes to carry?

A—That is the only one.

Q—You tried to bet on a second man then?

A—Yes.

Q—This little arrangement which you entered into with Cobb, was that a sort of promissory note?

A—No, I do not know that we promised anything to anybody.

Q—The first request with Nash was you say, so that Nash would not throw you over?

A—Exactly.

Q—You got a thing that would blacken Cobb if he did?

A—As far as for yourself, blacking would injure, would it?

A—I do not know whether it would or not.

Mr. Reed—I think it would.

Mr. Reed's examination was then directed to the object of showing a contradiction between the statement of the Weber committee, that the parish had been carried by the Democrats by legitimate means and a statement made in Mr. Hayes's testimony that there had been some illegal intimidation in the parish. A long train was examined in the attempt to show that the Democratic party had carried the parish by intimidation, but the witness declined to say that he had any personal knowledge of such intimidation. He knew that the Democratic party had carried the parish, and the people were, as a rule, Democrats.

The Court physicians still hope for the Emperor's speedy recovery, but owing to his stronach's yesterday, relapsed in evening. The morning of the 31st was the Emperor with the Empress was driven to the Castle of Babelsberg, where the Empress and Princess Victoria and Princess Louise, the Empress has yet left his bed, she sees her several times daily. The Sovereigns of Europe have sent dispatches of sympathy and President Hayes also sent a kind message. Bismarck has received three telegrams from the Emperor, and Prince Bismarck has been with him. Both Bismarck and Moltke are expected to arrive at Babelsberg in a few days. Prince Bismarck is suffering in a slight degree from rheumatism, but is otherwise in good health. He has been with the Emperor since the 11th inst. Moltke is suffering in a similar manner with a fall received a few days ago. Both Bismarck and Moltke have been treated by Dr. Lauer, Emperor's physician. Bismarck has been with the Emperor since the 11th inst. The Tilton-Potter "Investigation"

SECOND DAY'S STOCKJINGS.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Reed!

Also Cross Examination of Address by Mr. Beed.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The Potter investigating committee met this morning. The Baltimore road's counsel Hunton (colored) Secretary of State, in reply to the question, that the ordinary routes from Virginia and Louisiana were not in his department and he was therefore unable to say what the result. Anderson was recalled by counsel, and produced a copy of the resolutions passed by the Democratic party in refusing to the agreement signed by Nash and Anderson to suppress all evidence of fraud in West Feliciana together with a statement relative to the action made by the witness on Saturday, that there was no evidence of fraud in the parish. Mr. Anderson was then questioned at length in regard to the agreement. Witness said: "On the day I signed the agreement there was no positive evidence of fraud in my possession affecting the legal status of my parish. At the same time, I knew it well, the intention to throw the parish out on a forged protest.

The Cross Examination Continued.

At this point considerable time was consumed in the effort of the Committee in discussing the character of questions which were to be put to the witness when he is sent in reference to certain parts of the testimony given by him before the Louisiana Investigating Committee while at New Orleans. The Protest contained in the Starmer report, which witness on Saturday referred to as having been filed in and if known was in the possession of Anderson, in order that the might make the examination at once while the great excitement was produced with the witness, in the course of his answers acknowledging that he should be glad to have investigating Committee while at New Orleans, for the purpose of carrying out the explanations had entered into with the Republicans. The Committee at 5.15 took a recess until 8 o'clock.

Scene of the Cross Examination.

Mr. Reed's questions were largely devoted to endeavoring to connect the witness for discrepancies between his testimony given Saturday and the subsequent declarations made by him before the Hayes investigating Committee that visited Louisiana last winter. The drift of the examination was to show that the witness had been influenced in his testimony by the fact that he had no evidence of fraud in his possession, and had not pretended that he had, and yet the statement made by him was, in effect, sufficient evidence that Mint Pitchlynn had been illegally elected by the Democratic party to the convention, for such supervisor being that which was to secure for him the position of Naval Officer. He was pressed on that point, as to whether his statement Saturday, that he had no such evidence was consistent with his subsequent statement that he could prove that the Democratic party in control at the time, if they could be convicted into such testimony, and also sought that he had knowledge that the vote of the State was to be thrown out on a general protest. He also admitted that he did not attempt to get the position of Naval Officer, and that he had no personal interest in the matter, as all he got was not to suppress the truth.

Q—You say in that letter—

A—Oh, simply took this paper like a piece of homeopathic sugar candy.

Q—That is about the order given when a medical man administers medicine.

A—It was not very sugary, because in the distribution the Radicals got the bitter and we got the sweet.

Q—Is that part of explanation, you would give frequently since then?

A—I never have had to say it in so many words, until I was brought in contact with Republicans officials in Louisiana.

Q—It is a common way to do business in Louisiana?

A—Yes it is a common thing in Louisiana.

Q—Something like this: "I bought collector, but I made him a present of that I will give John Smith a collectorship and you both keep it and that binds you to that the sort of agreement you are to all kinds of matters?

A—No, I am not aware of it being a bargain.

Q—You do not know how many more of these little promissory notes to carry?

A—That is the only one.

Q—You tried to bet on a second man then?

A—Yes.

Q—This little arrangement which you entered into with Cobb, was that a sort of promissory note?

A—No, I do not know that we promised anything to anybody.

Q—The first request with Nash was you say, so that Nash would not throw you over?

A—Exactly.

Q—You got a thing that would blacken Cobb if he did?

A—As far as for yourself, blacking would injure, would it?

A—I do not know whether it would or not.

Mr. Reed—I think it would.

Mr. Reed's examination was then directed to the object of showing a contradiction between the statement of the Weber committee, that the parish had been carried by the Democrats by legitimate means and a statement made in Mr. Hayes's testimony that there had been some illegal intimidation in the parish. A long train was examined in the attempt to show that the Democratic party had carried the parish by intimidation, but the witness declined to say that he had any personal knowledge of such intimidation. He knew that the Democratic party had carried the parish, and the people were, as a rule, Democrats.

The Court physicians still hope for the Emperor's speedy recovery, but owing to his stronach's yesterday, relapsed in evening. The Sovereigns of Europe have sent dispatches of sympathy and President Hayes also sent a kind message. Bismarck has received three telegrams from the Emperor, and Prince Bismarck has been with him. Both Bismarck and Moltke are expected to arrive at Babelsberg in a few days. Prince Bismarck is suffering in a slight degree from rheumatism, but is otherwise in good health. He has been with the Emperor since the 11th inst. Moltke is suffering in a similar manner with a fall received a few days ago. What Bennett Says.

Special Dispatch to the Sun.

BALTIMORE, June 4. The Sun publishes a card from James Gordon Bennett in Paris, in reference to his duel in which he says the State's denials of the affair are of a certain cardinal correct.
